PREFACE

THIS book will not appeal to a large public; it is, I fear, totally lacking in all the attractions of a popular novel. Primarily it will interest the philologist, if anyone, but while recognizing this, I should like to recommend it to the still more limited class of those who may in the course of practical life come into contact with one or other of the dialects it deals with.

On the uses of a knowledge of dialects I am not going to enlarge. The advantages that are gained by treating with a man in his mother tongue are recognized by everyone with experience, and dialects from one point of view are only incompletely differentiated languages. Dialects, in many ways a bane to the practical worker, have, however, the merit that they are not actually distinct languages and that they can be studied in their relation to the standard languages of which they are variants, and, in fact, a knowledge of them is most easily thus acquired.

In the present instances the differences between the dialect and standard Persian are mainly phonetical and morphological. Certain sounds in the one are more or less regularly represented by certain other sounds in the other. These substitutions can be predicted almost with certainty and their recurrence can be represented as the result of "laws", the "Sound Laws" of philology. The morphological variations are in many cases the outcome of the operation of these "laws" of sound change on the inflectional endings of words, or otherwise they consist of the interchange of elements of different origin but analogous function.

All these differences can be most easily learned by comparing the dialect with the standard language, deducing the rules to which the changes of sound conform, and noting the actual replacement of one element by another one. This comparison has been carried out in the present book in regard to the three dialects dealt with, and anyone who may want to acquire a working knowledge of them will find that it will set him well on his way and save him the labour of collating for himself a mass of miscellaneous detail.

He will find that χt in standard Persian appears in Bakhtiari as δ or d, and ft as d or δ , to quote only two striking examples.

The morphology of Bakhtiari has not been set out in the present work, having been left till a more convenient season, but that does not detract from the helpfulness of what has been done, though it leaves it lacking a desirable supplement.

The non-professional student who may have merely the ordinary base motives of everyday life for wanting to know a dialect, the class whom I am attempting to capture at the moment, will find beside each dialect word its relative, where such exists, in standard Persian, and it is not in the least incumbent on him to follow me in tracing both back to an earlier form in which each may be believed to have had its origin.

Besides the main differences of phonetics and form, dialects probably always display some difference in vocabulary from the standard tongue. The present work is too small to contain anything like complete vocabularies of the three dialects, but it may be claimed that the vocabularies given include, especially in the case of Bakhtiari, the commonest and most important words in daily use.

So much for the attractions which this book presents to the scholar-malgré-lui.

It would be futile for an amateur to attempt to beguile the trained acumen of the professional philologist. He must be left to judge for himself of the merits and demerits of the work. I can only tender it to him with a "recommendation to mercy" and a request to search his own past record if he has occasion to fall foul of misprints.

By the time it appears the bulk of this book will probably have been four years in the Press, and the rest of it three, and its proofs have intermittently at long intervals followed me in a roving life half round the world. It has not always been possible for me to refer to my original notes, and I think that even specialist authors do not reckon to keep technical detail fresh in their minds for a period of years.

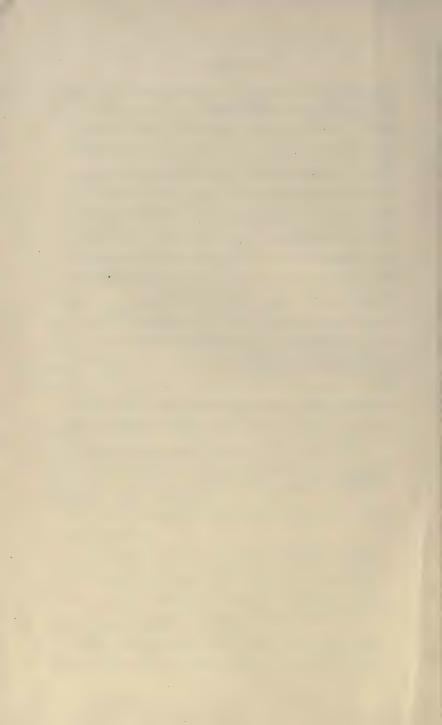

I have to thank the Royal Asiatic Society and the India Office for making the publication of this book possible. The former by including it in their list of Prize Publications and the latter by undertaking to buy 100 copies of it. It was believed that the Bakhtiari portion might have been useful to British officers who were concerned with affairs in the South-West of Persia during the war. But the Press has proved more than a match for the war in avoiding a conclusion.

I have once been rash in promising — or threatening — a "sequel", and I do not wish to repeat the mistake. I may, however, say that I have further Bakhtiari material of a more interesting nature than that included here. This comprises popular tales of all descriptions and popular poetry, an extensive vocabulary, and abundant material for a treatise on the morphology, the omission of which here will doubtless be a source of grief to my many readers, professional and non-professional.

I. THE BAKHTIARI DIALECT

INTRODUCTION

THE Bakhtiārī tribes occupy the large tract of mountainous country in South Persia, lying roughly between longitudes 48° 40′ and 51° E., bounded on the south by the plains of Rāmuz, Shūshtar, and Dizfūl, and on the north by the high-lying submontane districts of Chahār Maḥāl, Farēdan, and Khunsār.

From their mental and physical characteristics, and from their habits, there is every reason to believe that the Bakhtiārī are Iranians of the Iranians. This presumption is not belied by their language, and it is further strengthened by the nature and situation of their country, which consists of a series of lofty and rugged mountain ranges separating at once the Persian uplands from the low-lying plains of 'Arabistān, and the home and centre of the Persian race from the outskirts of the Arab diffusion. It seems more than probable that the Bakhtiārī of to-day are the modern representatives of a long series of ancestors who have occupied the same territories and followed a similar mode of life from a remote past.

The Bakhtiārī have for many generations been divided into two main groups of tribes known as the Haftlang and the Chahārlang. The hegemony of the whole now resides with the Haftlang, one of the sections of which provides the ruling family, whose members, under the title of the Bakhtiārī Khāns (Khawānīn i Bakhtiārī), have, thanks to the part which they have in recent years played in Tehran politics, acquired a European celebrity and occasional exaltation in the columns of the Times.

Though thus figuring as Haftlang this family is said to have originated from a boy of the Pāpī tribe of Lurs, who was ejected by his fellow tribesmen and recalcitrant subjects, and strayed into the Bakhtiārī country from the west of Luristān.

Till the middle of last century the Chaharlang were the dominant tribal group, and it was only Jafar Qulī Khān, the grandfather of the present Haftlang Khans, who succeeded in extending their sway and establishing the general ascendancy of the Haftlang.

The Chaharlang are now numerically inferior and confined principally to the south-east portion of the country, where they live a more or less sedentary life, and to its northern and western frontiers, where they are nomadic.

The large majority of the Haftlang are nomadic, and in the course of their seasonal migrations cover all the central part of the tribal territory.

In the winter they are found scattered among the low hills and undulating valleys fringing the 'Arabistān plains, but with the arrival of the Vernal Equinox they begin to turn their faces northwards and then gradually make their way to the lofty central ranges and the high-lying hill-girt plains beyond, which border on and shelve down to the central Iranian plateau.

Autumn, again, sees them retracing their arduous steps along unmade tracks over the intervening ranges to their winter haunts.

Though nomads, whose principal interests centre in their flocks and herds, they are not—like many of their cousins the Lur tribes of Luristān—a pastoral people of the straitest sect, for they also practise agriculture. Indeed, many tribes cultivate two sets of crops, sowing wheat, barley, and other cereals in the uplands $(y\bar{e}l\bar{a}q)$ in autumn, which they reap on their return in the following summer, and again sowing wheat and barley in the garmsīr (hot country) in winter, which some of their number remain behind to reap and harvest when the general exodus takes place in spring.

The ordinary tribesmen are destitute of any bookish education or knowledge of the outer world, though they may visit the neighbouring towns as foreigners for commerce or barter, but the exigencies of their active, roving life, ever confronting them with the unmitigated dangers of rugged mountains and swift rivers, and exposing them to the vicissitudes of climate and weather, keep their wits in a state of intelligent activity.

Pastoral peoples are not usually fools, as the humble necessary cultivator often is, and the nomad grazier should be a combination of Rob Roy and the Lowland Scottish shepherd. The Bakhtiārī has more of Rob Roy perhaps than of the shepherd in him, and his natural pastimes, when left to pursue his own courses, are rather raiding and robbery than poetic reflection or philosophic meditation.

Considering his surroundings and his neighbours, it is not altogether surprising if the Bakhtiārī is a man of violence and not unacquainted with sin. If under the discipline of relatively powerful chiefs his quick temper may find satisfaction in belabouring a quarrelsome or sulky wife or hurling himself on an annoying brother Bakhtiari, rather than in the excitement and danger of an attack on a neighbouring tribe, and if petty thieving and pilfering often take the place of robbery under arms and other high emprise, it is by no means always so. At least, the manliness of the race has not as yet been assailed by the debasing influences of law courts with their chicane and false swearing to another's hurt, practices in which, I have no doubt, the Bakhtiārī tribesman would soon prove an adept if opportunity presented itself.

The Bakhtiārī, whose ruling vice in his own humble sphere is that of all Persians—greed of money and of possession — does not merely envy and grieve at the good of his neighbour; he tries to transfer it to himself.

I am, however, not here concerned with the Bakhtiāri's morals but with his language, and my object in adverting to his life and habits is to bring into prominence conditions which are calculated to affect the range and nature of his speech.

We have seen that the typical Bakhtiārī is a shepherd, cattle-owner, and nomad; we have seen that he is also an agriculturalist, that the country he inhabits is wild and savage, and that he is constantly exposed to the severities of nature, to heat and cold, to rain and snow, and parching dryness. All these conditions postulate a vocabulary sufficiently variegated to deal with them, for they constitute the crude material of necessary conversation.

As to manner of speech, the Bakhtiārī is an out-of-door animal and a mountain-dweller, and is accustomed to exercising his lungs, if occasion require, across a valley or down a hillside. The less sophisticated tribesman is therefore apt to be a noisy companion in a drawing-room; on the other hand, he has, as a rule, the merit of articulating clearly.

Turning to external conditions, until recent years the greater part of the country was little traversed by outsiders. Now, the Lynch Road carries a varying stream of caravans accompanied by Shushtari, Dizfuli, Chaharmahali, and occasionally Arab muleteers or donkey-or camel-men. But this traffic is restricted to the line of the road, and the districts and tribes lying off the road are little visited. On the other hand, there is considerable commerce with towns such as Shushtar, Dizful, Ramuz, and Ispahān, where the tribesmen take the products of their flocks and herds for sale, purchasing in their stead the more artificial necessaries of life, such as matches, sugar, piece-goods, and cotton textiles of all sorts, which furnish the principal material of their clothing, and all iron implements, such as spades, ploughshares, bits, and stirrups, as well as copper cooking pots.

Further, the Bakhtiārī have some relations, frequently hostile, with their tribal neighbours. On the west these are the Lurs, in particular the Dirakwand and Sagwand, and on the south-east the Kühgalü, all like themselves of Iranian stock and speaking dialects not widely differing from Bakhtiāri. On the north they have the Iranian village population of Chaharmahal and Faredan. On the east, however, their neighbours are the Turki tribe of the Qashgai, and all along their southern border, only interrupted by the three towns mentioned above and a few villages, roam the Arab tribes of 'Arabistan. One small community of Arab origin even lives among and counts as a part of the Bakhtiārī. These are the 'Arab Gāmēsh, who, as their name implies, make their livelihood by keeping herds of buffaloes. The buffalo has no place among the stock of the true Bakhtiārī nomad.

Thus, the permanent external influences which may be expected to modify the Bakhtiārī tongue are: (1) the Persian dialects of the towns, (2) the Lur and Kūhgalū dialects, also Persian, and (3) the Turkī and Arab dialects, which are totally alien.

There is, however, a further fluctuating source of influences affecting the mental horizon and language of the tribes regarding which a few words are necessary. I cannot say exactly when the Bakhtiārī Khāns first began to visit the Persian capital, but it is certainly not less than twenty or thirty years since the Sardar Asad (Hājjī 'Alī Qulī Khān) first began to frequent Tehrān, and at any rate ten or twelve years ago several of the Khāns of the rival families of cousins spent some time in the capital. The primary object of each visitor was to gain the ear of the Persian ministers and secure for the family of which he was a member the coveted posts of Ilkhānī and Ilbēgī—officials who are appointed by the Central Government and recognized by them as the responsible heads of the tribe.

One chief, Lutf 'Alī Khān, now the Amīr Mufakhkham, served for many years with the then heir to the throne, Muhammad 'Alī Mīrzā, as Commander of his body-guard in Tabrīz. Later, the part that several of the Khāns and their followers played in the struggle between the "Constitutional" party and Muhammad 'Alī, now become Shah, and how they ousted the latter and provided Persia with a Prime Minister and Cabinet, is public knowledge. Under this régime or that which succeeded it Bakhtiārīs also held several Provincial Governorships, e.g. those of Ispahān, Yezd, and Kermān.

The result of all this is that not only all the chief Khāns, but also hundreds of their followers, have in recent years spent long periods in Tehrān and the North, as well as in several other of the principal cities of Persia, and their outlook has been proportionately extended. In the case of the uneducated this means an increased familiarity with ordinary Persian and an enlarged vocabulary. Nor have these been the only acquisitions; Bakhtiārī sowars now smoke cigarettes instead of only the qaliān, and a respectable number of them have become addicted to opium.

Another effect of these sojournings abroad is to make it more difficult to say when and from what source foreign elements have been adopted into the language. Arabic and Turkī words may have been acquired at first hand from the Arabs and Qashgai, or they may have been picked up through the medium of ordinary Persian in Tehrān.

All better-class Bakhtiārīs talk ordinary Persian with ease and fluency, if not with a Tehrān intonation or preciosity, and are ready to water down their own dialect with it. Anyone who learns to read and write does so in ordinary Persian, for Bakhtiārī has no literature and is seldom or never written.

The returned Vikings narrated their adventures in foreign lands and on foreign seas to their home-folk, and in the same way the Bakhtiārī at his home-coming doubtless describes the joys of the capital and the part his chiefs and he have played in national politics; and this cannot be done entirely in the restricted vocabulary of the nomad or the cultivator.

Bakhtiārī wanderings have not of late been confined to the soil of Persia. Several of the older Khāns have paid visits to Paris and London, and more than one Khān's son has been, or is being, educated in Swiss or English schools. We need not, however, expect to find the Bakhtiārī backwoodsman talking a Frenchified or Anglified form of his mother tongue. The effect is rather to alienate the Bakhtiārī chief's son from the tribesman than to draw the tribesman into the vortex of European civilization.

Our general conclusion may be that, like all languages that are not dead or moribund, the Bakhtiārī language is growing and incorporating extra-tribal elements, and the range of vision of the tribesmen is becoming extended beyond the geographical limits of their habitat, and that this process is likely to continue until the dialect gradually approximates, both in vocabulary and grammatical forms, more and more closely to a universal form of Persian.

It will, however, be many a long day before the names of the concrete objects of everyday life are ousted, or characteristic forms of inflection give way to those of ordinary Persian. Such matters rest with the mothers of the tribe, who do not travel beyond the shadows of their own eternal hills.

The Bakhtiārī have for many years attracted an increasing amount of attention on the part of Europeans. They were known, indeed, from references to them in Persian history, but as a modern and extant people they were discovered for the outside world by Sir A. H. Layard, who lived among them on a familiar footing for some time in the years 1840-2, when the power of the Chaharlang chiefs, though tottering to its fall, was still dominant.

Another traveller, De Bode, Secretary of the Russian Legation at Tehran, also visited the country in 1840–1. Permanent relations between the Bakhtiārī and the British were, however, inaugurated only by the visit of Major H. A. Sawyer to their country in 1890, where Mrs. Bishop's wanderings also took her at the same time. Shortly before this, in 1889–90, Lord Curzon had travelled through Bakhtiārī-land, and the best account of the tribe is still to be sought in the pages of his masterly work, Persia and the Persian Question.

In all these years, however, little attention was paid to the Bakhtiārī dialect. I write beyond the reach of libraries and divorced from many of my own books, and I cannot speak with certainty, but I believe that a few Bakhtiārī words are given by Layard in JRGS., vol. xvi, and by Houtum Schindler in ZDMG., vol. xxxviii (1884), pp. 43–116, but neither of these articles have I been able to examine.

The only systematic study of the dialect would appear to be that contained in Oskar Mann's Die Mundarten der Lur Stämme im südwestlichen Persien, Berlin, Georg Reimer, 1910. Mann gives fifteen or sixteen pages of specimens of prose and poetry with translations in German, prefaced by a few general remarks on the various Lur dialects, including Bakhtiārī, and followed by a short combined vocabulary. The results of Mann's researches are useful as far as they go, but they are by no means free from error.¹

¹ In his translations he twice renders B_{χ} . isd (isd) as "you", pl. German "Sie", but in his vocabulary he deliberately equates it in meaning with Mn.P. $iš\bar{a}n$, "they", German "sie", and on p. xxviii he again renders it by Mn.P. $i\bar{s}\bar{a}n$,

I have, in recent years, devoted considerable study to the dialect, and have collected large quantities of popular poetry and prose tales. These I have written down from the mouths of several Bakhtiārī of the upper, or at least of the more intelligent classes, belonging to some of the principal sections of the Haftlang, whose language represents what may, I believe, be considered the standard speech of the tribe.

In the circumstances in which the Bakhtiārīs live dialectal differences of vocabulary and pronunciation may be postulated and do in fact exist, but to ascertain and classify all the variants would require more minute and extended research than it has been possible for me to undertake. The material at my disposal is, however, fairly comprehensive and representative, and it should be adequate for my present purpose, which is to deduce a general outline of the phonology of the language.

There is naturally considerable latitude in the pronunciation, especially of vowels. That is a phenomenon from which no spoken language is exempt, and it is of course particularly marked where the steadying or petrifying effect of a script is absent.

I have chosen Modern Persian (Mn.P.) as the immediate basis of comparison, because that comparison is more useful than any other from the point of view of a person anxious to learn the language for practical purposes. The philologist can either already equate the Mn.P. forms with those of Old Persian and Avestic, or he can find plenty of assistance in doing so elsewhere. I have, however, in general, given brief indications of the older sounds which are represented.

I have provided a tolerably representative collection of words to illustrate the various sound developments, and additional examples of the initial sounds will be found in the vocabulary at the end of the article under the letter concerned, along with all the words cited in the text.

It is impossible for me here to deal with questions of morphology, but the differences between Bakhtiārī and Ordinary Colloquial Persian (O.C.P.), though noticeable, are not profound. The following points may be mentioned:—

The plurals of animate objects are usually formed by the addition of the suffixes $-\bar{u}n$ (Mn.P. $-\bar{u}n$) and $-g\dot{e}l$, $-y\dot{e}l$.

A suffix -ke is sometimes used with demonstrative force : $p\bar{\imath}.\mathring{a}$ -ke, "the man."

The termination of the 3rd sg. of the present tense of verbs is $-\bar{e}$ or -a; that of the 2rd pl. is $-\bar{i}n$, and of the 3rd pl. -an, en.

The perfect tense is obtained by the addition of \bar{e} to the forms of the preterite: $av\bar{e}dum$, "I came"; $av\bar{e}dum\bar{e}$, "I have come."

The Mn.P. verbal prefix $m\bar{\imath}$ - is replaced by i-.

The verb $\check{s}udan$, "to become," is not found, and its place is taken by wo i $b\bar{\imath}dan$.

The forms $b\bar{a}\check{s}am$, etc., are not found, and are replaced by the subjunctive of $b\bar{\imath}dan$.

The construction with the past tenses of transitive verbs is the same as in Mn.P.

Notes

- 1. A vertical line above a letter indicates the stress accent.
- 2. The sign || between two forms indicates that both forms are in use and have been recorded.
- 3. A question mark before a word or statement indicates doubt whether the word really illustrates the principle of which it is given in illustration, or whether the statement is just.
- 4. A question mark after a B_{χ} word indicates doubt as to the existence or correctness of the form; after an English word or Mn.P. word doubt whether it correctly represents the meaning, or if a Persian word, whether it corresponds to the $\mathrm{B}_{\mathrm{X}}.$

Following the usual practice I have quoted Sanskrit roots and forms in their "un-gunated" forms. Following Bartholomae I have given Avestic roots in their "gunated" forms.

Thus: Skr. \(\sqrt{bhu}\)-, Av. \(\sqrt{bav}\)-.

d

The sign : after an infinitive serves to introduce the present-base $d\bar{\imath}dan$: $b\bar{\imath}n$.

PHONOLOGY

BAKHTIĀRĪ SOUNDS

1. The principal sounds and those of which I have taken cognisance in B_{χ} . are:

Vowels

α \grave{a} è	e
i
u 0
ei	au	0)1
Consonants
		PALATALS
		č

SIBILANTS	NASALS
8	າຈ
š	n
z	m ž ·
Liquids	ASPIRATION
l	h
r

Of the simple vowels given above some tend to become diphthongal, thus:

 $ar{a}$ · a ·

There are also:

au·ū ai·i

where the last element appears to have developed out of the preceding one and not to be original.

Value of the Symbols

2. \bar{a} is as in "father".

ă is the corresponding short. It has not been considered necessary to give it a special sign, as it occurs only in conjunction with h (ah-, -ah-, -ah) in the diphthongal a^a , and finally or independently. The value of ah seems also to approximate to \bar{a} and \hat{a} , but the h is often slightly pronounced and the vowel short. Examples:

tahl bitter $b\bar{a}r\,(bahr)$ share. \check{a} is used to mean \bar{a} or \check{a} .

3. å is the sound of awe, autumn:

då mother (jackdaw).

 \hat{a} is etymologically only a variant of \bar{a} . Some persons affect the one sound and some the other, and the same man will sometimes use them indifferently in pronouncing the same word. From the extremes the sounds vary inwards, and it is sometimes difficult to know which sign to employ. The variation goes still further, and the sound changes to \bar{o} , \check{o} on the one side and occasionally to a \grave{a} on the other. Thus: wa, $w\bar{a}$, $w\bar{a}$, $w\bar{o}$, wo; $av\bar{e}d$ (not $\bar{a}v\bar{e}d$, probably owing to the accent falling on the second syllable), $\bar{o}v\bar{e}d$, $ov\bar{e}d$, $ov\bar{e}d$, $uv\bar{e}$ -id.

- 4. a is the ordinary vowel represented by the fatah of the Arabic script, resembling the u of "cut", but I think more open.
- 5. à represents a sound approximating to the a of "cat": (1) it is commonest in ah following a palatalized guttural as an alternative to the \check{a} sound; (2) it also occurs before consonantal combinations beginning with \check{s} ; and (3) it occasionally occurs as a variant of \bar{a} before n:

kàh (kah) chopped straw.

wårgàh (wårgåh) camping-ground.

àśnīdan to hear.

imànī (imānī) thou remainest.

màndan, mandan,

māndan to remain.

6. \bar{e} , French \acute{e} as in "détente"; Scots "day" (I take "dare" to be rather $d\bar{e}^e r$). It is frequently followed by an i sound: \bar{e}^i , \bar{e}^i .

 $av\bar{e}d$ he came. $r\bar{e}^i\delta$ he scattered.

In some words \bar{e} , \bar{e}^i may be replaced by ai, e.g. $av\bar{e}d$, avaid.

7. è is an open è approximating to the e of "let" and "men". It occurs occasionally before n $iven\bar{\imath}$ he throws but most frequently finally when it is difficult to discriminate from \bar{e} , with which it seems to interchange.

- 8. e is the sound of e in "water".
- 9. $\bar{i}$ is the $i$ of the French "dites". The nearest English is the sound of $ee, ea$, as in "reed" and "bead", which, however, is said by Jespersen to be always diphthongal, but in "seat", for instance, it does not seem to me to be markedly so.

i is the i in English "bit".

- 10. ū is the ou in the French "jour", oo in "boot".
 u is the u of the English "put", "pull".
- 11. \bar{o} is the o of the French "chose". It tends to become diphthongal ou, o^u , like the \bar{o} of English, as in "so" (=sou), "close" (=klous).
 - o is usually the o of the English "hop", "stock". Finally, and before h, it is the short of \bar{o} , the vowel sound in the French "peau", "faux".
- 12. au is the ou in the English "sound".
 - ai is the vowel sound in English "died" (I should write Engl. "die" da^{i}).
 - ei, is si, or wi. It is the sound I personally say in "tight" (teit), "tide" (teid), as opposed to the ai in "tied" (taid).
 - oi as in the English "noise" (Engl. "boy" I should write boi^i). It commonly appears for \hat{a} before \bar{e} , y, etc.:

 $j\mathring{a}^{\overline{e}}$ $joi^{\overline{e}}$ $Mn.P. b\bar{v}^{\overline{a}}yad$ $b\bar{e}$ -oi-h- \bar{e} $\chi ud\mathring{a}ya$ $\chi udoiya.$

Gutturals

13. q is the velar sound represented in the Arabic script by g.

k are often markedly palatal and develop a palatal g glide, as in:

 $k^{i}am = kam,$ $h\hat{a}^{i}k = \chi \bar{a}k.$

gyerdin = gardan. $gyau \parallel gau.$

In such cases they should, I think, be classed as Palatals.

 χ are the voiceless and voiced guttural spirants γ represented in the Arabic script by $\dot{\tau}$ and $\dot{\xi}$.

Palatals

14. ℓ) are ts and dz respectively as in English "church" j (ℓ er ℓ) and "judge" (jaj).

These sounds are therefore compounds: dental + palatal.

y initial is as in English; $y\bar{u}$ as English "yew". Medially it occurs only as a glide, is less of a spirant, and varies in force down to vanishing point.

Dentals

15. $t \atop d$ are, I think, post-dental.

 δ is the voiced inter-dental spirant, the th in the English "this", "breathe".

 θ I have only recorded once and it may be disregarded (it would be the voiceless inter-dental spirant, the th in the English "think", "death").

Labials

16. pb call for no remark.

The sounds I represent by these symbols are w troublesome. Neither of them in its English value exactly represents the B_X , sound, which itself varies. I think the average sound is what Jespersen represents by \bullet , and Germanic philologists by "barred b", b, which is an unrounded bilabial spirant, the u in the German "Qual", "Quelle". When final and preceded by a the sound is, as a rule, definitely labiodental, v.

Sibilants

- 17. s I am unable to offer any exact information about the nature of the B_{χ} . s and z, or of s and \dot{z} . They seem to me not to differ perceptibly
 - from the sibilants in the English "sit",
 - "freeze"; "shut," "pleasure," and therefore the two first are, I suppose, alveolar, and the two latter palatal.

Nasals

- 18. 72 The nasal immediately preceding g is always guttural, and I have not thought it necessary to mark it specially. Where the combination is $in\ paus\bar{a}$, or is followed by a consonant, the g is silent.
 - B χ . tang, pronounce tan, like English "tongue". When a vowel follows the g is pronounced: $tangum\bar{e}$, pronounce $tangum\bar{e}$, i.e. $tan-gum-\bar{e}$, sanger, etc.
- 19. \tilde{n} The sign \tilde{n} I have used to represent a nasalization which attaches itself to the preceding vowel. It would probably be more correct in some cases merely to mark the vowel as nasalized and in others to mark the vowel as nasalized and add an n, i.e. $h\tilde{o}-a$, $h\tilde{o}^na$, instead of $h\tilde{o}\tilde{n}a$, as I have sometimes done. I think, however, that there is often something more than a mere nasalization of the vowel, and as the pronunciation varies between the extremes of simple vowel nasalization and a full dental n, this intermediate stage seems not improbable. As, however, I adopted the use of the sign \tilde{n} for this sound many years ago when first writing down Bakhtiārī, and have ever since continued to employ it from various considerations of convenience, it is possible that my phonetical appreciation has been prejudiced by my eye.

Liquids

20. About m, r, l I have no remarks to offer. They do not seem to differ noticeably from the corresponding English sounds, except that the r is always sounded and is not only a graphic survival as frequently in English (water = wate, etc.).

Aspiration

- 20a. h is as in English. Its position varies with the accompanying vowel. In $h\hat{a}r$ it is further back than in $h\bar{v}n$.
- 21. In the transliteration of Mn.P.:—
 - (a) I have shown the classical \bar{e} and \bar{o} sounds as $\bar{\imath}$ and \bar{u} , as they are now in most cases pronounced, except where it was desirable to distinguish between what were \bar{e} and \bar{o} and $\bar{\imath}$ and \bar{u} respectively in classical Persian.
 - (b) Written \bar{a} I have shown as \bar{a} , but it is to be remembered that at the present day it usually sounds more as a short \hat{a} or o (\mathfrak{d}) and frequently before n as \bar{u} .
 - (c) a is usually a somewhat drawled sound which I am unable to describe phonetically. It is not the English a in "cat" as Englishmen

- frequently like to make it, desiring to recognize a familiar friend. Often a is pronounced as e.
- (d) Written ai and au I have represented by those groups, though their pronunciation newadays more usually approaches \bar{e}^i and \bar{o}^u .
- (e) As in B χ , Mn.P. q tends to be pronounced as γ , and γ as q.
- (f) The y-glide boldly shown in most transliterations of Mn.P. is slight or imperceptible: $\chi \bar{\imath} \cdot \mathring{a}r \text{ or } \chi \bar{\imath}^y \mathring{a}r, \text{ not } \chi \bar{\imath} \cdot y \mathring{a}r.$

 $gurba\ i\ qašang\bar{\imath}$, a handsome cat.

- (g) The v/w question also presents difficulties in Mn.P. The solution is to be sought in \bullet .
- (h) I have omitted -h where it has no etymological value.

POSTSCRIPT

Since writing the above notes I have happily "discovered" the textbooks issued under the auspices of the International Phonetic Association, and have been able to acquaint myself to some extent with the principles and doctrines of the Association.

In particular I owe a special debt for enlightenment to Daniel Jones's Pronunciation of English, Grant's Pronunciation of English in Scotland, and Noel-Armfield's General Phonetics, which appear to me wholly admirable.

This good opinion is, I believe, not entirely due to my having found in these works confirmation and support in many doubts and suspicions which I had come to entertain of expressed or implied phonetic assertions contained in ordinary books on language: o in "on" is not the short of o in "dote" (Scots) and so on, and Scots has a pure e and o corresponding to the French \acute{e} and o (in $t\delta t$), etc.

Looking through what I have written above I would now tentatively establish the following equations with symbols employed by the I.P.A.:

$$\bar{a}$$
, $\check{a} = a$: and a $\hat{a} = \varphi$;, φ (Scots) $a = A$ $\grave{a} = e$ or a (Scots) $\bar{e} = e$;, e (Scots) $\grave{e} = \epsilon$;, ϵ $e = \varphi$ $\bar{i} = i$;, i $i = I$

Final ℓ and i sometimes = I (Scots).

$$ar{u}_{\cdot} = u; \quad u \qquad \qquad u = v(?) \qquad \qquad -o = 0$$
 $ar{o} = o; \quad o \text{ (Scots)} \qquad o = o; \quad o$
 $ai = ai \text{ or } ai(?) \qquad ei = oi$
 $au = av \text{ or } av(?) \qquad oi = oi$

Note.—A point to note is that my long signs really represent quality, and not length. I think that vowels are seldom fully long in B_{χ} . except when in the final position, e.g. $p\hat{a}=p\varrho$:

If this is so, a point of similarity is to be remarked between Bχ. and Samnānī, vide § 3 of Arthur Christensen's "Le Dialecte de Samnān" in the Mémoires de l'Académie Royale des Sciences et des Belles Lettres de Danemark, 7^{me} série, Section des Lettres, t. ii, No. 4, 1915.

$$q=q$$
 $k=k$ $k^i=c$
 $g=g$ $gy,g^i=y$
 $\chi=\chi$ $\gamma=y$
 $\delta=b$ $j=d\check{z}$ $y=j$ (i, also sometimes c ?)
 $\delta=\delta$
 $v=v$ v and w both probably tend to v
 $v=v$ v probably v and v

I cannot venture to diagnose l, but I think it inclines to l^i rather than to l^u . As regards h see the Pronunciation of English in Scotland, § 124.

31. ŏ.

The length of $B\chi$. o is so liable to variation that it is convenient to treat all forms of it together. There are three principal sounds represented by $B\chi$. \bar{o} and o, viz., Mn.P. \bar{o} , \bar{a} , au.

(1) B

There is no nasalization to represent the n of the Persian man, O.P. $man\bar{a}$ (gen. sing.). Perhaps it descends from the enclitic acc. form, which appears as $-m\bar{a}$ in both G. and Y. Av.

41. j.

(1) B_{χ} . j = Mn.P. j

Mn.P. j represents several sounds in O.P. and Av., the principal being y- and \mathcal{E} . The development of j in $B\chi$. seems to follow exactly similar lines, and it is unnecessary to give many examples.

(6) In B χ . a y-sound after initial g and medial g (where it is preserved) is often optional, but in some words is more or less constant. It occurs especially before a, e, au, and i. I do not know it before \mathring{a} and only once before \check{u} (tangyum).

It appears to be simply a glide arising from the palatal nature of B_{χ} . g. It frequently appears in a less decided form in which cases I have represented it as g^i . This i glide is also frequently heard after k.

Examples

Oskar Mann 1 usually gives the final consonant of the 3rd sg. pret. of a verb as t, e.g. $b\bar{\imath}t$, gut, giriht, kirt, oveit. I do not agree with this; the final consonant should be d or δ . Thus, $b\bar{\imath}d$, $b\bar{\imath}\delta$; gud, $gu\delta$; kerd; ove^id , etc., and only rarely t, e.g. $ka\bar{\imath}t$! $ka\bar{\imath}\bar{\imath}d$.

(2) Reference has been made in paragraph 19 to the modifications which are to be observed in the n-sound.

Essentially it is a normal, full-blooded dental n as in English, but according to its position it is liable to degradation. Much individual variation exists both in regard to when this degradation takes place and to how far it is carried; even the practice of the same individual is not constant.

Generally speaking final $\bar{o}n$, $\bar{u}n$, $\hat{a}n$, $\bar{a}n$ sound as \tilde{o} , \tilde{a} , \tilde{a} , \tilde{a} and medial n between vowels where the first vowel is one of those just mentioned generally passes into a nasalization of this first vowel.

Initial n is always normal.

Final n following any vowel other than those mentioned above remains normal; only occasionally in the case of

-in have I heard -i.

(3) In the case of medial and final n described above all variations are heard, some individuals favour nasalization of the vowel, some the full n-sound.

I think there is also an intermediate sound in which the nasalized vowel is followed by some suspicion of an n. This I have represented by the writing \tilde{n} .

As stated in § 19, it is not improbable that this is wrong. It might be safer to show the vowel as nasalized and add a small n, thus: \tilde{n} .

With some people the nasalized vowel is followed by a w-glide where the vowel is \bar{o} or \bar{u} .

Occasionally the nasal seems to be lost entirely.

These statements may be illustrated by the following examples of alternative pronunciations:

 $d\bar{u}nist$ $d\bar{u}nist$ $d\tilde{u}vist$ he knew Mn.P. $d\bar{u}nist$ (or the vowel \bar{o} throughout).

 $h\bar{o}na$ $h\bar{o}\tilde{n}a$ $h\tilde{o}^na$ $h\tilde{o}wa$ house $\chi\bar{a}na$ (or the vowel \bar{u} throughout).

iniščwum Mn.P. mīnišānam

Where the w occurs I sometimes suspect the nasalization of being continued into it, which is, I suppose, phonetically possible.

I have not recorded any instance of the occurrence of two \tilde{n} 's in one word, thus:

 $\bar{u}n\tilde{u}$ they $\check{c}un\tilde{u}\tilde{n}$ such

(4) n immediately preceding other consonants is guttural, viz. w, when the consonant is g, and may perhaps be palatalized when the consonant is j or \check{c} .

Horn, however, does not appear to recognize the existence of palatal n in Mn.P. Vide G.I.P. i, 2, § 23, l. 1, and \check{e} and \check{j} , as above noted, really begin with the dentals t and d.

Otherwise, as far as I know, n is found only before d, and occasionally before t and z of the remaining consonants.

Before d and t, as a rule, n is purely dental, though I have heard $v\tilde{a}^ndum$ for the regular vandum, "I threw," and

(6) In B χ . r occurs, apparently intrusively, in some words in which the Mn.P. equivalents lack it:

 $ij\bar{u}ran$ (infin. they seek $m\bar{i}j\bar{u}yand$ Cf. Jew.P. $j\bar{u}ri\check{s}n$, justan) search; G.I.P.i, 2, § 79 teristan to be able (to) (Cf. tawānistan) $just-:j\bar{u}r$ - is perhaps on the analogy of $\check{s}ust-:\check{s}\bar{u}r$ -

(7) Mn.P. \mathbf{r} lost in B_{χ} . before $\check{\mathbf{s}}$ and \mathbf{s} in:

(3) B χ . h as a glide between vowels occurs chiefly after long vowels

$$\hat{a}$$
, \bar{o} , \bar{u} , and $oi = \hat{a}$.

Its use is not fixed; some people appear to use it little if at all, and to employ no perceptible glide between adjacent vowels, or in some cases to prefer to insert a y in the neighbourhood of a palatal vowel.

 $i-y-\hat{a}-h-\bar{e}\parallel iy\bar{o}\cdot\bar{e}$ he comes $ib\bar{u}$ -h- $\bar{e} \parallel ib\bar{u}$ $\cdot \bar{e}$ he is, becomes $da-h-\hat{a} \parallel da\cdot\hat{a}$ prayers, petitions $du'\bar{a}$ Ar. $ig\bar{o}$ -h- $\bar{e} \parallel ig\bar{o}$ \bar{e} he says $j\hat{a}-h-\bar{e}\parallel j\hat{a}\cdot\bar{e}$ a place mål i kē-h-ina? whose is it? $(i k\bar{e} = \text{whose}; (n)a = \text{is})$ lå-h-aq fit for $l\bar{a}iq$ Ar. $q\bar{a}id$ $q\hat{a}$ -h-id || $q\hat{a}$ a title, Qaid Ar. she gives birth to, mīzāyad Av. Vzan $iz\hat{a}$ -h- \bar{e} . zå-h-īda || zoi·īda having given birth to

Where the glide is omitted and the second vowel is short there is frequently contraction, e.g.:

ibūm || ibūhum I become igum || igōhum I say (radical vowel is ŏ, ŭ) iyom || iyāhum I come $egin{array}{ll} igar{o} & (ext{see above}) & ext{he says} \\ iy\hat{a} & ext{he comes} \\ i\chiar{o} & ext{he wants} \\ \end{array}$

Also in B χ . hašt, hèd, hēš (plough), following Mn.P. hašt, hast, $\chi \bar{\imath} \dot{s}$; see above, subsections (1) and (2).

(5) Loss of h in B χ .:

(a) Medial h between vowels, especially following a short vowel, is as a rule dropped and the two vowels then coalesce:

nāalān don't let na hilīd (obsol.) $n'à stins \bar{u} \tilde{n}$ they didn't let na hištand šān them (obsol.) čår čahār O.C.P. čār four čil čihil O.C.P. čil fortv idum, ide I give, he gives mīdiham, mīdihad $\chi^v \bar{a} harz \bar{a} da$ $\chi urz \hat{a}$ sister's child $m\bar{\imath}niham$ inum, etc. I place $m\bar{i}jaham$ I jump, run off

(b) Where there is reason to retain the two vowels distinct the h is frequently retained or reintroduced as a glide:

$i\chiar{o}\cdotar{\imath}\parallel i\chiar{o}har{\imath}$	thou wishest	$m \bar{\imath} \chi^v \bar{a} h$
$i\chi \bar{o}n \parallel i\chi \bar{o}han$	they wish	$mi\chi^vah$	and

Initial

 $\chi u d \hat{a} (h) \hat{a} f i z$ God protect you, good-bye

(c) h before a consonant is in general unstable:

$mar{e}minar{u} ilde{n}$	guests	$mehm\bar{a}n$ - $h\bar{a}$
$m\grave{e}rabar{u}nar{\imath}$	kindness	$mihrb\bar{a}n\bar{\imath}$
$tulm \parallel tum$	seed
$suhr \parallel sur$	red

(6) Other examples of h in B χ .:

From what has been shown above it will have been seen that h is a somewhat uncertain sound. Initially it may be inorganic, and medially between vowels it may be also merely a glide and inorganic. Immediately preceding a consonant it appears always to have an etymological value, but then it is very liable to disappear. When final it is often extremely difficult to decide whether it really exists or not.

MISCELLANEOUS PHONETIC PHENOMENA

A few further phenomena may be separately mentioned.

60. Vowel Change

The vowels show a good deal of optional variation both in quantity and quality. The most common cases have been mentioned in dealing with the individual vowels.

Vowels are also liable to alteration in quality under the influence of adjacent sounds. In particular a palatal tends to palatize a vowel in its neighbourhood and a labial or an \hat{a} to labialize it.

Thus, usually, though there is a good deal of variation:

 $\begin{array}{ccc} iruvum & & {
m I \ go} \\ irivar{\imath} & & {
m thou \ goest} \end{array}$

Examples

 $b\ddot{a}luq$ of age $b\ddot{a}li\gamma$ Ar. $biniy\`erum$ (also let me see binigaram $biniyer, biniy\ddot{a}r$, impv.)

Many other examples will be found in the illustrations throughout this article.

In $a\chi t\bar{v}\hat{a}r \parallel i\chi t\bar{v}\hat{a}r$ the initial a is probably due to the following χ .

The negative particle na regularly changes to $n\bar{e}$ before the i- prefix of the present indicative or any other i.

 $n\bar{e}ikunen$ they do not do thou dost not strike $n\bar{e}il\bar{e}=na$ (h) $il\bar{i}$ thou mayest not permit

61.

ELISION OF VOWELS

Internal

(1) Elision, or coalescence, of vowels is common where an intervening consonant has fallen out.

 $ar \parallel a^a r \parallel ayer$ if agar wurist $\hat{a}n$, wurist $\hat{a}^a n$, they stood up wurist $\hat{a}dan$

Vide \S 42.2 and \S 44.11 c.

 \hat{a} may absorb a following i:

mazāqa k.	to grudge	muzā īqa	Ar.
tåfa tåifa toi·ifa	tribe	$t\bar{a}\cdot\bar{\imath}fa$	Ar.
malåka	angel, angelic	? Ar. malā	ik,
		angels

External

(2) External elision is general where one of the enclitic forms of the personal pronouns, or the verb to be, which begins with a vowel, follows a word ending with a vowel.

If one of the vowels is long it survives, while short u and i seem to defeat short a or e, \grave{e} .

zen'ē, zēn'it	a wife, thy wife	$z\bar{e}na$ - \bar{e} , $z\bar{e}na$ - it
z'um	from me	ze-um

(3) The negative prefix $n\hat{a}$ absorbs an initial vowel in $n\hat{a}'l\hat{a}j$ without remedy

The negative particle na is usually preserved or altered to $n\bar{e}$, see above, § 60.

(4) The vowel of the pronominal suffixes is elided after the preposition wur, e.g.:

wur'm, wur't, wur's on me, thee, him what on it?

(5) Two adjacent long vowels are usually maintained: $d\bar{o}l\bar{u}\cdot\bar{e}$ an old woman

 $p\bar{\imath}\cdot\hat{a}\cdot\bar{e}\parallel p\bar{\imath}\cdot\hat{a}h\bar{e}$ a man

In the forms $ig\bar{o} \parallel ig\bar{o}\cdot\bar{e}$, he says; $iy\hat{a} \parallel iy\hat{a}\cdot\bar{e}$, he comes; $i\chi\bar{o} \parallel i\chi\bar{o}\cdot\bar{e}$, he wishes, the second vowel was probably first shortened by the stress falling on the first vowel and then absorbed.

(6) The $iz\bar{a}fa$ is sometimes elided or dropped, but more usually persists:

ba andâza-i— to the amount of $d\bar{u}st\bar{i}$ i mun o tu the friendship of me and thee

 $ra\chi t \mathring{a} i \chi u m$ my clothing

The following are, however, a few examples of its suppression:

dårī bī hūšī a drug producing loss of senses

tŭ didū munī you are my sister

katxudå mål the headman of the camp pasmanda (i) $\bar{\imath}r\bar{\imath}n\bar{\imath}e$ she is the leavings of Persia ba $nazd\bar{\imath}k\bar{\imath}$ yè $ab\bar{\imath}d\bar{\imath}e\bar{\imath}e$ in the neighbourhood of a village

nišašt på pušta he sat down at the foot of

62. Contraction

Contraction as apart from that produced by the elision of one of two adjacent vowels appears in:

 $d\hat{a}r\gamma ah$ Superintendent of $dar\bar{o}\gamma ah$ Ar.

Police

mur χas allowed to go, to do, mur $a\chi\chi as$ Ar.

etc.

muruat generosity muruat Ar.

63.

CONSONANTAL SANDHI

Cases of the change of consonants from voiced to voiceless, or vice versa, according to the nature of a contiguous sound are fairly common:

- (a) $a\chi t \parallel aqd$ betrothal 'aqd Ar. $art \parallel ard$ flour $ka\check{e} k\bar{a}rd$ crooked knife for $kaj k\bar{a}rd$ $pan\check{e} t\mathring{a}$ five for $panj t\mathring{a}$ qais kerd he became angry Mn.P. $\gamma \bar{e}z kard$ $raht pai i \dots$ he went after ... for $rahd \ pai \dots$
- (b) asp, but asbe horse $ba\chi t$, but your good fortune baydat . izad bukunē you should pay 'izzat Ar. respect to $i\chi dil at$ conversation $i\chi til\bar{a}t$ Ar. haf kaug he used to shoot seven (=kauk) izaid partridges nisp, but half of nisb i $hi(j)j\hat{a}$ Mn.P. hīč jā nowhere

REDUPLICATION

(1) At least two instances occur of reduplication of a root being employed to form a single word:

pēpèhīn rērèhīn all fat and juicy all be-dunged which appear to be the simple words $p\bar{\imath}h$ and $r\bar{\imath}(d)$ reduplicated with the adjectival suffix $-\bar{\imath}n$ added.

(2) Reduplication of words used in an adjectival or adverbial sense denoting distribution or continuousness is fairly common in $B\chi$. as in Mn.P.:

hawår hawår igō

do tå moiyūñ kaher kaher

tīka tīka wō bīdan

yakī yakī

xailī par par ē

he whispers quietly two black mares

Notes

- (1) $-\bar{u}\tilde{n}$ after nouns are the suffixes to denote the plural. $-y\grave{e}l$
- (2) The forms shown after the infinitives of verbs are the present bases to which the appropriate prefixes and suffixes are added to form the various moods, tenses, and persons of the present.
- (3) In forms beginning with iy- the prefix of the present indicative i- is included.

The subjunctive and imperative prefix in such cases is usually $b\bar{e}$ -, sometimes followed by y and sometimes not:

 $iy \hat{a}rum$ I bring $b\bar{e}\cdot \hat{a}r$ bring! $iy a \hat{s}num$ I hear $b\bar{e}y a \hat{s}$ listen!

- (4) For the interchangeability of the vowels see §§ 2-12.
- (5) δ may usually also be read for medial d between vowels and often for final d preceded by a vowel.
 - (6) The following abbreviations have been used:

 $\begin{array}{ll} b. & = b\bar{\imath}dan \\ d. & = d\mathring{a}dan \end{array}$

 $f.k. = ful\bar{u}na \ kas$, such and such a person

II. THE BADAKHSHANI AND MADAGLASHTI DIALECTS

INTRODUCTION

THE dialects dealt with in this article are those spoken by the people of Badakhshān and of Madaglasht respectively.

The province of Badakhshān fills the north-easterly corner of Afghānistān. It is bounded on the north by the Oxus, which divides it from the Russian territory, while to the south of it lie Minjān and the mountain districts inhabited by the Kāfir tribes. On the east Badakhshān marches with Chitrāl at the Dōrah Pass, whence the waters of the Lutkoh flow down to join the Chitrāl or Kashgār River a few miles above the historic Chitrāl Fort.

Madaglasht is a small settlement of Persian-speaking foreigners planted in the middle of the principality of Chitrâl and entirely surrounded by the Kōwār-speaking subjects of the Mehtar of that state. It is situated in a high-lying mountain valley some twenty-six miles to the north-east of Drōsh. The Madaglasht stream is also, like the Lutkoh, a tributary of the Chitrâl River, into which it flows, on the left bank, about three miles above Drōsh.

This Persian settlement is of modern origin. Four families are said to have immigrated into Chitral from Zibak in Badakhshān. They found employment with the Mīr i Kalān, the great Katōr Mehtar of Chitral, as ironworkers, but pressed by poverty some, or all, of them wandered on further afield to Chutiatan on the Malakand—. Chitral road in Dīr territory. There two of their number died and were buried, and the remainder were invited back to Chitral by the Mehtar, who gave them land to settle on in Madaglasht, where they continue to exercise their craft as iron-workers.

Six generations are said to have elapsed since the immigration, and the colony has increased to some thirty families. The pedigree of the leading family during this period is given as follows:—

Asākåluk Ustå Qurbån Shakar Ustād Muråd Shīr Muhammad

The last-named, Shir Muhammad, was my informant, and it was from him, and a somewhat brighter and more intelligent henchman, that I extracted the material retailed in the following pages.

For my Badakhshānī material I am indebted to two men of the Werdūj, who have remained nameless, but principally to one Nasīm, son of Latīf, hailing from Faizābād.

It will be seen that my sources of information were very restricted, and my informants did not make up for their deficiency in number by any special brilliance of The time at my command was also limited, as I left Chitral shortly after commencing my investigations and was unable to secure fresh informants or even to check the results obtained by cross-examining my original ones as I should have liked to do. In these circumstances the reader must be warned of the probability of individual eccentricities of pronunciation and idiom having been accepted as normal, apart from errors due to misunderstandings on my own part. Our means of communication was not entirely satisfactory, as the colloquial of Modern Persia presented difficulties to my informants, and my practical command of Kowar, with which the Madaglashtis are well acquainted, was limited.

Anyone who has had experience of trying to elicit the characteristics of a colloquial tongue from an illiterate exponent of it will, in these circumstances, expect neither complete knowledge nor entire absence of error.

From the material here presented, however defective, it is sufficiently clear that these two dialects, which appear to be historically one and do not differ in any essential respect, are merely a form of the ordinary Modern Persian of Persian literature known as "Classical Persian". They are no separate Iranian dialects such as Yudghah, spoken by a small community at the head of the Lutkoh valley, and a number of other petty languages spoken in the Pamīr region.

It is probable that they are very similar to "Kābulī Persian", the language of the Afghān court, and to the form of Persian which is used for correspondence in Chitrāl.

The Vocabularies present some words which are entirely strange to me, such as:

M. alaxšā jaw B.M. lakīk finger

B.M. fårīdan to wish, desire and some borrowings from Kōwār, Pashtū, and Hindūstānī, but the number of these is on the whole surprisingly small, and the bulk of the words are familiar Persian in ordinary use at the present day in Persia. (See further § 39.)

CONTRACTIONS

The following contractions and abbreviations have been employed:—

a. adjective. adv. adverb.

Afy. Pashtū, the Afghān language.

B. Badakhshānī.

Bχ. dialect of Modern Persian spoken by the Bakhtiārī tribes of S.W. Persia.

Gabrī Modern Persian dialect, spoken by the Zoroastrian (Zardushtī, Gabrī) communities of Yezd and Kermān.

H. Hindūstānī.

k. kerdan.

Ko. Kōwār, the Chitrālī language.

M. Madaglashti.

Mn.P. Modern Persian in general; the Persian of Persian literature, Classical Persian as opposed to O.C.P.

n. noun.

O.C.P. Ordinary Colloquial Persian of the present day.

P. Panjābī.

P.Ar. Arabic words used in Mn.P. and in O.C.P.

pr. preposition. pro. pronoun.

š. šudan.

v. i. intransitive verb. v. t. transitive verb.

z. zadan

The stress accent, in a few cases where it has been specially noted, is marked by a vertical line over the vowel on which it falls, e.g. qalwa.

 \tilde{n} denotes that the n-sound is not complete, but is rather the nasalization of the preceding vowel.

|| between two forms denotes that they are recorded variants of the same word.

* an asterisk before a word indicates that it has not been recorded and therefore must, strictly speaking, be regarded as hypothetical.

PHONOLOGY

1. The ordinary vowel sounds in Badakhshānī and Madaglashtī are:—

[~] over a vowel means that it is nasalized.

A point between two vowels indicates a hiatus.

The vowel sounds of B. and M. are the same, or practically the same, as those of ordinary colloquial Modern Persian, with the exception of \dot{e} and \ddot{u} , which are not found in Standard Persian, and of \bar{e} and \bar{o} , which in these dialects are usually monophthongal, while in O.C.P. they are more or less diphthongal as in English, i.e. $\bar{e}.\dot{i}$ and $\bar{o}.u$, as in $d\bar{e}.it$ (date), $m\bar{o}.ut$ (mote).

2. å, ā.

 \hat{a} is in both dialects the commonest pronunciation of etymological \bar{a} , but \bar{a} , o, and \bar{o} are also heard,

 \bar{a} principally in M. o might frequently be more correctly represented by \mathring{a} , the short of \mathring{a} , the actual sound lying between \mathring{a} and o.

n and m do not exert as strong an influence on a preceding \bar{a} as they do in many dialects of Mn.P. and even in O.C.P.

 $\bar{a} + n$ is usually pronounced $\hat{a}n$, sometimes $\bar{a}n$ and $\bar{o}n$ or on, but seldom $\bar{u}n$ as in vulgar O.C.P. We have, however, M. $n\bar{u}n$ against B. $n\hat{a}n$, $n\tilde{a}$.

In general the tendency for \bar{a} to become \bar{o} appears to be stronger in M.; cf.:

3. a, e.

(a) a and e are fairly constant, though occasionally influenced by a neighbouring palatal or n:

B. čimčaB. pānjM. čamčaB. pānjM. pànj

-a + m is usually -am, but sometimes -um as in the ordinals:

B.M. čårum fourth

Before r the sound is usually e.

(b) a is sometimes replaced by \bar{a} in B., e.g.: $\bar{a}sp \parallel asp$; $lang\bar{a}r\bar{\imath} \parallel M$. $langar\bar{\imath}$; B.M. $guz\bar{a}ram$ for Mn.P. guzaram, I pass by; on the other hand, B.M. $guza\bar{s}tan$ for Mn.P. $guz\bar{a}\bar{s}tan$, to leave behind.

It may be remarked that the languages of the neighbouring Chitrālī and Kāfir tribes show great uncertainty of vowel length and, within limits, quality.

(c) $e = \text{Mn.P. } \tilde{u}$.

Compare B.M. murd; B. mēmbera, M. mīmerad with Mn.P. murd; mīmīrad, where the present base is probably formed on the analogy of the past base, or else derived from an old simple present theme of the root mar. Cf. Gabri imèrīt, which similarly fails to correspond to the Mn.P. mīmīrad.

4. ē.

(a) $\bar{e} = \text{Mn.P.}$ \bar{e} (O.C.P. \bar{i}), usually corresponding to O.P. ai, Av. $a\bar{e}$.

In B. the \bar{e} sound is generally preserved, while in M. it is usually changed into $\bar{\imath}$ as in the present-day speech of Persia:

B.
$$b\bar{e}d$$
 M. $b\bar{i}d$ willow $b\bar{e}l$ spade $b\bar{e}m\bar{a}r$ $b\bar{i}hm\bar{a}r$ ill $d\bar{e}g$ $d\bar{i}g$ pot $m\bar{e}-$ wrebal prefix pres. and imperfect tenses $saf\bar{e}d$ $saf\bar{i}d$ white $s\bar{e}.\bar{u}$ $s\bar{i}.\bar{u}$ apple but B. and M. $gur\bar{e}xt-: gur\bar{e}z-$ to run away

$$deri.\bar{e} i kal \hat{a}n \qquad \text{a big sea}$$

$$x\hat{a}n\bar{e} i xida \hat{s} \qquad \text{his own house}$$

(c) \bar{e} replaces \bar{a} in:

B. $\chi \bar{e}stam$ Mn.P. $(ber)\chi^v \bar{a}stam$ I rose up probably, however, owing to the analogy of the present base $\chi \bar{e}z$ -, Mn.P. $(ber)\chi \bar{e}z$ -.

The M. is werxistam: werxīz-.

15. The consonantal sounds ordinarily heard in Badakhshānī and Madaglashtī are:

zīrak

B.

zīrāk

q, k	t	p
g	d	b
χ		f

There is little or no difference between the sounds represented by these symbols and the corresponding sounds in Mn.P.

16. Loss of Final Consonants.

There is some tendency to drop or slur final consonants. This tendency is more pronounced in B. than in M.

- (a) B. normally lacks the final d of the verbal ending of the 3rd sg. pres., and both B. and M. lack the final d of the 3rd plural:
 - B. $m\bar{e}kina$ M. $m\bar{i}k\ddot{u}nad$ (or $-k\ddot{u}na$) he does $m\bar{e}kinan$ they do
- (b) Final t following a consonant is often slurred or dropped in B, e.g.:

šas, sixty; raf(t); guf(t); $b\bar{e}.es$, M. $b'\bar{\imath}st$, stand still!; $as \parallel ast$, is; also $b\hat{a}^t$ ($b\bar{a}yad$).

- (c) Final d preceded by z is liable to be dropped: B. duz(d), mez(d), naz(d) Mn.P. duzd, muzd, nazd
- (d) Final -ab is reduced to au in B. lau and M. šau; and -āb to -aū and -au in B. aū (M. āv) and M. $\chi au(b)$, B. χab , χau ; cf. also B. $s\bar{e}.\bar{u}$, M. $s\bar{\imath}.\bar{u}$, apple, Mn.P. $s\bar{\imath}b$. See § 12b.

17. Unvoicing of Final Voiced Stops.

(a) Final voiced stops in Mn.P. are frequently represented by the corresponding voiceless stops in B. and occasionally in M. where the phenomenon seems to be chiefly confined to verbal endings:

В.		Mīt	Mn.P.	-īd (2nd pl. verb	oal ending)
	$arb\hat{a}p$	6		$arb\bar{a}b$
	$b\bar{u}t$, $b\bar{u}d$	$b\bar{u}t$		$b\bar{u}d$

	šap, šab	šau		šab
	šut, šud	$ sar{\imath}t$,	šud
	zerd. zert	,		zard

- (b) For other treatment of -ab, $-\bar{a}b$ see §§ 12b and 16d.
- (c) B. has the same change in the initial position in tigma, button, beside Mn.P. dugma.

18. χ and γ .

The spirants χ and γ sometimes appear to be confused:

B. $b\hat{a}\chi$, $b\hat{a}\chi\check{c}a$ M. $b\hat{a}\gamma$ Mn.P. $b\bar{a}\gamma$ ustu $\chi^{a}n$ sutu $\chi^{a}n$, ustu $\chi^{v}\bar{a}n$ sutu $\chi^{a}n$

Change of Medial Voiced Stops followed by a Vowel to Spirants.

- (a) I have only sporadic and inconstant examples of $d \rightarrow \delta$, as in:
 - B. $kud\mathring{a}m \parallel ku\delta \bar{a}m$; M. $d\mathring{a}dam \parallel d\mathring{a}\delta am$; $\check{s}ud\bar{\imath}m \parallel \check{s}u\delta \bar{\imath}m$
- (b) The change $-b + \text{vowel} \longrightarrow -w + \text{vowel}$ is general in B. and is sometimes found in M.:
 - B. $gir\bar{e}w\hat{a}n$ M. $girb\hat{a}n \parallel$ Mn.P. $gir\bar{i}b\bar{a}n$ $girw\hat{a}n$

20. Change of Spirant to Stop.

The change of spirant --- stop is found in:

M. pilta match of matchlock Mn.P. $fal\bar{\imath}ta$, for $fat\bar{\imath}la$ $p\bar{\imath}l\bar{a}t$ $f\bar{\imath}l\bar{a}d$

21. Change of $f \rightarrow u$, $b \rightarrow u$.

In B. -af + s and $-af + \check{s}$ give -aus and $-au\check{s}$.

B. yaus M. yafs kauš kafš

M. has, however, $-ab + k \longrightarrow -auk$ in:

M. kauk Mn.P. kabk

22. -ft.

The group -ft appears to give - χ in :

B.M. kulux Mn.P. kuluft

I have also B.M. $b\hat{a}\chi t - :b\hat{a}\chi$ for Mn.P. $b\bar{a}ft - :b\hat{a}f$, to weave, but as I have in addition M. $b\hat{a}ft - :b\hat{a}f$, it is possible that this equation of $b\hat{a}\chi t$ is wrong and that it should be bracketed with Mn.P. $b\bar{a}\chi t - :b\bar{a}z$, to lose (a game). In that case the present base $b\hat{a}\chi$ would be due to analogical derivation from the past base.

In any case -ft is usually preserved in both dialects, as is evidenced by B.M. raftan, guftan, and M. kuftan.

23. k and g.

The palatal character of k and g is often emphasized in M. so that the sounds appear as k^i , gy, e.g.: k^iam , gyašt, $gy\bar{a}št$.

24. č and j.

- (a) č and j correspond to the same sounds in Mn.P., but
 M. has tsåder (and tsader), beside B. čådēr, veil, sheet, probably a borrowing of the Afγ. tsāder.
- (b) Again, B. kišå, M. kūšå correspond in meaning and use with Mn.P. kňjā, and š possibly represents -jbetween vowels.
 - Is B.M. $\check{suridan}$, to seek, want, to be equated with Mn.P. $justan:j\bar{u}$ -, B χ . $justan:j\bar{u}r$ -?

In M. pīšāk š possibly represents č.

(c) There is some uncertainty between s and š, as in various dialects of Mn.P. Thus:

В.	līst-: lēs-)
M.	lišt-: līs-	to lick Mn.P.	lišt- : līs-
В.	$rar{\imath}ar{s}t$ - : $rar{e}s$ - $ar{\imath}$	to spin	rišt-)
M.	$r ilde{\imath} ilde{s}t$ - : $r ilde{\imath} ilde{s}$ - \int	to spin	rist-
В.	$\{\bar{u}\}$ $\{\bar{u}\}$ $\{\bar{u}\}$ $\{\bar{u}\}$ $\{\bar{u}\}$ $\{\bar{u}\}$	to wash	šust- : šūr-
M.	šīšt-: šūr-∫	to wasii	3000 3001-
В.	šīšt-: šīn-	to sit	$nišast$ -: $niš\bar{\imath}n$ -
M	šišt- (hinuše! impy)

m. sist-(othuse: impv.)

but in general both dialects agree with Mn.P.

(d) B. j = Mn.P. d in $j\bar{u}\bar{s}\bar{\imath}dan$, to milk, Mn.P. $d\bar{u}\bar{s}\bar{\imath}dan$. j occurs for d in Kowar, $j\bar{u}$, two, Mn.P. $d\bar{u}$. Perhaps the insertion of a palatal glide is the cause, dy and j tending to interchange, cf. the vulgar "jook" for "duke"; Prakrit vijjut for Skr. vidyut, French jour ($\bar{z}\bar{u}r$), Latin diur-, etc. I have met Swedes whose nearest approximation to the sound of English j was d+y, and who always said "dyoke" for "joke" and "dyest" for "jest", and so on.

25. z.

z is changed to i or dropped in:

B.M.
$$ai \parallel az$$
 Mn.P. az M. $akšåhi$? $(=az k\bar{u}šå)$ from where?

144 THE BADAKHSHANI AND MADAGLASHTI DIALECTS

and probably in:

B.M. bīča kid, for *buzča (?)

26. r.

The loss of r before d in the B. kad = kard, which is restored in the ppc. kerda, appears exceptional.

In the case of B. $\chi at\bar{a}r\bar{\imath}k$ an r has perhaps been dropped before the t. I was in doubt whether there was not in fact an r-sound. The word is presumably to be bracketed with M. $\chi ert\bar{\imath}k$ and Mn.P. χurd .

27. m.

- (a) An intrusive b is developed after m in B. mē-mbera, he is dying; cf. Gk. μβροτός.
- (b) m appears to be dropped in:b'ânīm for bimânīm, let us set down
- (c) m = n occurs in:

B. pām M. paham Mn.P. pahan B.M. wazmīn heavy cf. P.Ar. wazn

28. n.

-ng, except when followed by a vowel, is pronounced n. Followed by a vowel it becomes -ng-.

29. y.

Initial y tends to be dropped or modified in B. while retained in M.:

B. \hat{a} ftamaš Mn.P. $y\bar{a}$ ftam-aš $a\chi$ M. $ya\chi$ $ya\chi$ \bar{e} la $yal\bar{a}$ open

B. $w\bar{e}^i r \bar{a}$ and M. $y \bar{u} r a (-h \hat{a})$ the gums, are presumably the same word.

30. w.

- (a) $-w \leftarrow -b$. See § 19 b.
- (b) $-aw\bar{a} \rightarrow \hat{a}$, o is found in B.M. $t\hat{a}nist$ -, tonist-, Mn.P. $taw\bar{a}nist$ -.
- (c) v occurs in B. $jil\bar{a}v$, Mn.P. jilau; gau; and M. $\bar{a}v$, Mn.P. $\bar{a}b$.

31. h.

(a) Excrescent initial h is met with in:

M.	haber	Mn.P.	abr
	havvål		$a\hbar w\bar{a}l$
	$hi\check{s}q$		ʻišq

(b) On the other hand initial h is lost in:

В.	$(h)am\bar{\imath}(n)$	Mn.P.	$ham \bar{\imath} n$
	$(h)am\bar{u}$		$ham\bar{a}n$
	$\bar{\imath}sa$		hissa

(c) In Mn.P. the h- has been maintained through the haft series and has then by analogy been continued to the hašt series. In B.M. the analogy has been applied otherwise:

- (d) In B. $ast\bar{\imath}$, $ast\bar{\imath}m$, etc., the spurious h of Mn.P. $hast\bar{\imath}$, $hast\bar{\imath}m$, does not appear.
- (e) Medial h is insecure, especially in B.

B. $m\bar{e}\chi a ham$, M. $m\bar{i}\chi a ham$ Mn.P. $m\bar{i}\chi^v a ham$ $m\bar{e}\chi \bar{o}yam$

$\chi ar{o}.er$	$\chi ar{o} her$	$\chi^v \bar{a} har$
$p\bar{a}m$	paham	pahan
$lar{e}f$	perhaps	lihaf
$mar{e}ti.a$	m idi(h)ad	$m\bar{\imath}dihad$

32. y and w as Glides.

(a) As in O.C.P., glides are commonly dispensed with or, at any rate, so reduced as to be negligible in writing, for in such cases a written y or w would lead to exaggeration in pronunciation.

The use of glides may be studied in the paradigms of the verbs guftan and amadan given in this article, but it is necessary to add that in more careful speech the glides are often restored and emphasized. Thus: M. $m\bar{\imath}goyam \parallel m\bar{\imath}gum$, but $m\bar{\imath}r\bar{\imath}m \parallel m\bar{\imath}raw\bar{\imath}m$ (where the w belongs to the root).

- (b) Especially in B. the tendency to omit glides is sometimes carried further, and juxtaposed vowels are amalgamated as in the last examples given and in:
 - B. $bi\check{s}\bar{u}m\ y\bar{a}\ na\ \check{s}\bar{u}m$ Should I wash it $\check{s}\bar{u}+um$ or not?

 $bi\check{s}\bar{u}\check{s}$ wash it! $\check{s}\bar{u}+a\check{s}$

(ruftan), mērum I sweep M. mīrōyam See also the paradigms of dådan and guftan.

- (c) Where an intervocalic h or w has been dropped, a y or w glide may sometimes arise in its place:
 - B. $\chi \bar{o}.er$ M. $\chi \bar{o}her$, $\chi \bar{o}werz \hat{a}da$
 - B. $m\bar{e}_{\chi}\bar{o}_{\gamma}am \parallel m\bar{e}_{\chi}aham$
 - M. mīrōyam
- (d) au resulting from ab, aw, tends to develop a secondary w:
 - B. $au \ w \ a\chi \ bast$ the water froze $birawum \parallel birau.um \parallel birauwum$ $sinauw\bar{u}dan$, sinauwum to hear, I hear
- (e) A complication of succeeding vowels is relieved by changing i into y in:

ai y aspå of these horses Mn.P. az īn asphā

MORPHOLOGY AND CONSTRUCTION

33. Nouns and Adjectives.

(a) Plural Termination. The usual plural termination of nouns is $-h\hat{a}$, $-\hat{a}$, as in O.C.P., but the names of certain animals and relations have their plurals in $-\hat{a}n$ (- $w\hat{a}n$), probably in most cases alternately with $-\hat{a}$:

B. $\chi \bar{o}.er \hat{a}n$ M. $\chi \bar{o}herw \hat{a}n$ O.C.P. $\chi^v \hat{a}.ar \hat{a}$ sisters $gauw \hat{a}n$ $g \hat{a}v h \hat{a}$ eows B.M. $sag \hat{a}n$ $sag \hat{a}$ dogs

(b) Accusative Suffixes. The accusative suffixes are $-r\hat{a}$, $-r\bar{a}$; -a, -na:

B.M. šumå rå

В. hamī asp a az kī xeridi? sar i zulf a $m\bar{\imath}bura$ ī xaber a kai dåda būdan? ī zamin a galwa ka! der šahr i Faizābād \bar{u} -na d \bar{i} dam čūčahårå girifta M. ī vaber a kai bē.i tū dådand? xirs Daula Muhammad a bår såxt xirs dast a på i

 \bar{u} -na kand

From whom did you buy this horse? He cuts his hair

When had they given this information? Plough this land! I saw him in the town of Faizabad Having caught the cubs

When did they give you this news?
The bear took up and carried off D.M.

The bear pawed (?) his arms and legs

I am unable to assert the existence of the ending -na. I have it recorded only in the forms $\bar{u}na$, $ham\bar{u}na$, $ham\bar{u}na$, where the n may belong to the pronoun, giving the forms $\bar{u}n$, $ham\bar{u}n$, $ham\bar{u}n$, corresponding to the Mn.P. $\bar{u}n$, $ham\bar{u}n$, $ham\bar{u}n$. An accusative ending -na is, however, used in Bakhtiārī with a word ending in a vowel.

(c) The sense of the Dative, including "motion to", is ordinarily conveyed by using the preposition ba, but the accusative suffix -a appears sometimes to be employed, with or without the preposition ba:

- B. ba šumå guft M. ba.i šumå he said to you guft
- B. berāder i xatārik kalāna guft the younger brother said to the elder
- M. burd ba dīger jā.a he carried him off to another place but it is difficult to assert the identity of the -a in $kal\bar{a}na$ and $j\hat{a}.a$ with the -a of the accusative.

- (d) Suffix -k (-uk, ĭk). A few nouns and adjectives have a suffix in -k:
 - B.M. amuk paternal uncle
 - M. čūčik the young of animal or bird
 - B. dastak small bean
 - B. jēwuk pocket
 - M. $\chi \bar{a} luk$ maternal uncle
 - B. $\chi et \bar{a}r \tilde{i}k$ small
 - M. xertīk
 - B. maidikik small
 - M. mū.ibandak plait
 - M. ninīk some kind of relation, paternal aunt?
 - M. pīčåluk fringe
 - M. $p\bar{\imath}\check{s}\mathring{a}k$ roll (?)
 - B.M. pušuk cat

Probably also:

- B. $g\bar{a}d\bar{\imath}k$ ewe
- B.M. lakīk finger
- (e) As regards the syntactical relation between nouns and adjectives, I have not noted any instance of the adjective preceding the noun which it qualifies.

34. Numerals.

- (a) The chief peculiarities are found in M., in which:

 The 30's are rendered by 20+10, 20+11, etc. bīst o

 dah, bīst o yāzdah, etc.
 - ,, 50's ,, 40+10, etc.

The 60's are rendered by three score (plus one, etc.). $s\bar{\imath}\ b\bar{\imath}st\ (o\ yak)$, etc.

" 70's " " " three score plus ten, etc.

" 80's " " " four score (plus one, etc.).

and " 90's presumably " four score plus ten, etc.

This recalls the Kowar system of counting by multiples of 20; $bi\bar{s}\bar{i}r=20, j\bar{u}$ $bi\bar{s}\bar{i}r=40, tr\bar{o}.i$ $bi\bar{s}\bar{i}r=60$, and the similar but more extended use of $\dot{s}il$ (score) in Pashtu as an alternative method of reckoning.

- (b) The modification of the u-vowel of d\u00e4 and n\u00e4h to e in de, two, ne, nine, is also peculiar to M.
- (c) Again, in M. the distributives have an $-\tilde{t}$ suffixed, which I do not remember to have met elsewhere: $\tilde{c}\tilde{a}r\tilde{\imath}\ \tilde{c}\tilde{a}r\tilde{\imath}\ big\tilde{\imath}r \qquad \text{take four of each}$

35. Verbs.

(a) The ordinary infinitive ending of denominative verbs, in Mn.P. $-\bar{\imath}dan$ is general in both dialects. In a few cases derived forms so composed take the place of an original verb. Thus:

B.M. šumārīdan to count Mn.P. šumurdan:šumār-B. šinauwīdan to hear šunīdan:šunū(y)-(older šunūdan, šunuftan; Gabri àšnuftmūn)

In the Persian used in Chitral in correspondence such compositions as $tasauwar\bar{\imath}dan$ to imagine, suppose $kun\bar{\imath}n\bar{\imath}dan$ to cause to be done are employed.

- (b) The causative infinitive termination in both B. and M. is -åndan; as usually in O.C.P., against -ānīdan in Mn.P.
- (c) I have failed to note any forms of the Passive Voice in either B. or M., but they probably exist though not in frequent use.

- (d) The 2nd person plural termination in B., $-\bar{\imath}n$, is common to Bakhtiārī, Kermānī, and other Persian dialects.
- (e) In the case of verbs with distinct present and past bases, the present base is sometimes generalized. Thus:

- $\begin{array}{c} \text{Mn.P. $\tilde{\epsilon}\bar{\imath}d$-: $\tilde{\epsilon}\bar{\imath}n$-;}\\ \text{M. $\tilde{\epsilon}\bar{\imath}nd:\tilde{\epsilon}\bar{\imath}n$-$;}\\ \text{B. $\chi\bar{e}st$-: $\chi\bar{e}z$-$}\\ \text{M.P. } (bar)\chi^v\bar{a}st$-: \\ \text{M.P. } (bar)\chi^v\bar{a}st$$
- B. šinauwīd-: šinau- cf. older šunuft-: šunō- and the dialects
- (f) The prefix ni- of the Mn.P. forms is absent in:
- B. šīšt-: šīn-Mn.P. nišast-:
- M. šišt- (pres. doubtful) nišīn-
- nišānd-: B.M. $\delta and - : \delta an$

cf. By. šūndan. nišān-

Similarly the an- of Mn.P. and $\bar{a}_{\chi}tan$ is missing in M. $d\hat{a}_{\chi}t$ -: $d\bar{o}z$ -, to throw.

- (g) The Modern Persian verbal prefix bar- is represented, as in most Mn.P. dialects, by wer-
 - Mn.P. bardāšt B.M. werdåšt
- (h) Where the tense and mood prefixes $m\bar{e}$, $m\bar{i}$, and biare prefixed to a verb beginning with a vowel, elision may take place:

from istådan — B. mestum, M. mistam, I stand; B. be.es (i.e. bēes), M. bīst, stand!

36. Prepositions.

The only unfamiliar preposition is the da of M., corresponding generally in meaning to Mn.P. bah. Perhaps it is a mere distortion of bah due to the influence of the Pashtu particle da of the genitive and ablative cases.

The M. use of derūn as a preposition meaning in, in the midst of, is not paralleled, at least in O.C.P.

For examples of the use of the various prepositions in B. and M., see below, § 38.

37. Syntax and Idiom.

As regards syntax and general idiom, these dialects do not differ in many points from O.C.P.:

(a) The present tense is used to denote the future, as generally in O.C.P., and the Mn.P. idiom of the present tense of $\chi^{v\bar{a}stan}$ plus the past base of the principal verb does not appear to be known.

(b) $\chi \hat{a}stan$ and $f \hat{a}r \bar{\imath} dan$, to want, wish to, and boiyad $b \hat{a}^a d$, etc., boi. $\bar{\imath} st$, must, are followed in both dialects by ki and the present subjunctive of the verb.

In M. boi.īst also takes the infinitive:

šumå rå čè mīboi.īst ī kår What necessity was there rå kerdan? for you to do this?

For examples, see s.v. in the Vocabularies.

(c) tânistan, can, be able, is followed in both dialects, as in O.C.P., by the present subjunctive, which in M. may be introduced by ki. It can also be accompanied by the infinitive, which in B. appears to precede, and in M. to follow, it, e.g.:

B. raftan namētånam I cannot go M. na tånistam raftan I could not go

(d) The $iz\bar{a}fa$ i, whether between noun and noun or noun and adjective, is occasionally omitted. It is similarly often omitted in other dialects of Persian, usually by elision when it comes into contact with another vowel, but sometimes merely through haste or carelessness of speech.

(e) My Madaglashtī informant appeared frequently to use the pronouns and verbal forms of the 1st person plural instead of those of the 1st person singular. Possibly he was accustomed to thinking in the plural, and it came natural to him in giving a part of a verb to say "we come", "we go," rather than "I come", "I go". In Bakhtiārī there is often an inaccurate use of the numbers in the case of verbs in the 3rd person where the subject is not expressed.

Examples of Prepositional and Adverbial Expressions

38. The following examples of the use of the principal Prepositions and Adverbs may be found of interest.

N.B.—It should be noted that I have kept strictly within the limits of my scanty material, and have refrained from assuming or creating any words or forms, however probable, of which I have no actual record. Where blanks occur it is, therefore, not to be inferred that the forms do not exist, but only that my hurried inquiries failed to elicit them.

There is, for instance, no reason to believe that B. lacks a means of expressing the preposition "at" or M. the genitive "of thee".

39. The Nature of the B. and M. Vocabularies.

(a) It has already been stated that the bulk of the words in both dialects are pure Persian, and a glance at the Vocabularies which follow will make this obvious. Many of the words have, however, become obsolete in the language as it is now spoken in Persia, but some of them have survived in everyday use in Hindūstānī. Where this is the case it is difficult to determine whether B. and M. have inherited them along with the other words they possess which are still current in the Standard Persian speech of the present day, or whether they have acquired them by borrowing from Hindūstānī and Pashtū.

The following may be cited as examples:

B.M. aurat (P.Ar. and H. 'aurat)

B. čimča M. čamča (Mn.P., H. čamča)

- B. kertà M. kirta (Mn.P. kurta, H. kurtā)
- B. $\chi \hat{a} m \alpha \chi \hat{a}$ (Mn.P. $\chi^{v} \bar{a} h m \alpha \chi^{v} \bar{a} h$ in constant use in Af γ .)
 - B. mōza (Mn.P. mūza, H. mōza)
 - B. $n\bar{a}\tilde{s}p\bar{o}t\bar{\imath}$ (Mn.P., H. $n\bar{a}\tilde{s}p\bar{a}t\bar{\imath}$)
- B. qalwa (Mn.P. qulba = plough (Steingass); Af γ , qulba = yoke of oxen)

B.M. rikåbī (Mn.P., H. rikābī)

- (b) The following are probably direct borrowings from the Indian side:
- M. $k\bar{o}t$ (Engl. through Hindüstäni; also known in Persia)
 - M. latta (Panjābī latthā)
 - B. mānja M. manja (H. mānjhā; Panjābī manjā)
 - M. $t\bar{a}mba$ (H. $t\bar{a}mba$; P. $t\bar{a}mb\bar{a}$)
 - B. wåskat (Engl. through Hindustani)

Perhaps also kitta-saq, cf. Hindustānī kuttā)

(c) Direct borrowings from Pashtū (Af γ .) appear to be scarce:

As above, B. qalwa has possibly been drawn from Pashtu.

- B. $g\bar{a}d\bar{\imath}k$ may perhaps be resolved into $g\bar{a}d + \bar{\imath}k$, in which case it may be derived from Af γ . gad, sheep.
- M. $t\bar{\imath}t$ may be identical with Af γ . $t\bar{\imath}t$, low, short, stooping down.
- M. tsåder is identical with the Afγ. form. M. tsader may be a mis-writing, otherwise it may be a borrowing of H. and Panjābī čaddar under Afγ. influence.

B. $jauw\bar{a}r\bar{\imath}$, M. $juw\dot{a}r\bar{\imath}$ are probably derived from Af γ . $jaw\bar{a}r$, but there is also H. and P. $ju\bar{a}r$.

(d) Borrowings from or through Kowar are naturally fairly numerous:

B. åsaqål, M. asaqål, a minor district official, is a title used in the Chitral administration "āsaqāl" ("aksakāl" O'Brien). I believe that it is a Turki word meaning "White Beard" (see J.R.G.S., vol. l, No. 6, Dec. 1917, p. 411, where it is spelt "aksakal").

B. kåk, dry, cf. Kowar kāk, dried up.

B. pārčam, Ko. pārčam, parčām.

B. šālī, M. šālī, Ko. šālī.

M. arqa, Ko. arqa.

M. tōnq, cf. Ko. tōng.

M. pākūl, Ko. pakōl.

M. pūč, Ko. pūč.

- (e) After discounting all the manifestly Persian words which constitute the bulk of these vocabularies, and, again, those which can be traced to Kowār, Hindūstānī, or Pashtū, there remain a score or two of words whose origin is obscure to me and to which I can suggest no parallels. They may be regarded as contributing to furnish a raison d'étre for this article.
- (f) There is no reason to suspect borrowings from geographically remote dialects of Modern Persian; where coincidence of form occurs it only argues a greater extension at some period of the word or form than one would have deduced from its isolated occurrence in a single dialect. The following points may be mentioned:

The identity of the vowel of the past base of B. $pa\chi tan$ and Gabrī $pa\chi - \bar{o}dm\bar{u}n$, to cook, in contrast to the u generally found in Mn.P. and O.C.P. $pu\chi tan$ is of interest.

Again, M. $tamb\hat{a}n$, trousers, appears to be the same word as the Gabri $timb\bar{u}n$, under-trousers, drawers. There is also H. and P. $tamb\bar{a}$, loose pantaloons.

B.M. paitauwa is identical with Bakhtiārī paitauwa, putties; the ordinary Persian is pāpīč.

B. has $b\bar{u}r$, grey, $B\chi$. $b\bar{u}r$ = chestnut (of a horse).

B. pas i på is duplicated in Bakhtiārī poetry.

B. uses fan and $B\chi$. fand = fraud, deceit. Fand is given in Steingass's Persian dictionary, but I do not remember hearing it in O.C.P.

Identical with B., bang is Kurdī, bang, roof.

(g) Both B. and M. differ from most dialects of Mn.P. in presenting few examples of Metathesis. I have mijāz for mizāj and juryāt might represent the Turkish word, which I am unable to authenticate, but which is, I think, juyūrt.

¹ I have -as for -as twice in my M. notes, and in one instance I appear to have confirmed it. B χ . has -as and $-s\bar{u}n$ regularly for -as and $-s\bar{u}n$, but in M. it is at best only an occasional lapse probably due to careless speech.

² Probably also in pronominal sense $(h)am\bar{\imath}n$ and $(h)am\bar{\imath}n$ as in hamina, hamina didum, where the n probably pertains to the pronoun. See § 33b.

SPECIMENS OF BADAXŠĀNĪ

I

This text was the result of an attempt to explain the parable of the Prodigal Son to my informant, and get him to give a version of it in Badaxšānī. He had, however, strong views as to what would naturally occur in such a family crisis; witness the intrusion of the cousin.

Yak ådam dū bača dåšt. χ atārīk bača ba pidar i χ üdaš guft: " \bar{E}^i pider, īsa i brāder i kalån aloi.id biko; īsa i man ham aloi.id biko."

Birāder i χ atārik kalān a guft ki: "Īsa i tū bīsyår šuda as. Mā o šumā ai yak pider hastīm, birāber mēgīrīm."

Bača i amukaš âmad o guft ki: "Īsa i mārā χāmaχā bi mā bitè (or χāmaχā bitè'm) kī amuk i mā as."

(Guftan) "Saar bī.å, waxt īsa i tera mētīm".

"Sa^ar ham åmadīm ba må na dådī. Mårå fan zadī. Čēra fan mēzanī? Haq i må bitē."

H

This second version of the same parable represents an attempt to get my informant to render it sentence by sentence, but by this method I had myself first to make a probable rendering and then to try to get it altered or corrected. In these circumstances the result cannot be regarded as the free and natural expression of a $\mathrm{Bad}\chi$ šānī, though it is, I believe, fairly correct and intelligible.

Yak ådamī dū bača dåšt. Bača i χ atårīk ba pidar i χ udaš guft: " \bar{E} pider, o haq i χ idam ba man bitī." \bar{U} wa χ t pideraš ba dū bača i χ udaš mål i χ udaš tagsīm kad.

The narrator, Shir Muhammad, was a poor hand at telling a story, and it was difficult to obtain explanations from him. I am not clear about the meaning of parts of the first paragraph:

 kat obviously means "along with", but I know nothing about the word.

pēčīdaš. pēčīd suggests "hugging", but the general sense seems to be "set upon". -aš probably for -šān and apparently ungrammatical.

bår såxt glossed "carried".

patik glossed "eyelids", but I do not know the word.

Palik is the Kōwār for "eyelid".

 $\chi is\bar{\imath}$ probably = $\chi uda\check{s} r\bar{a}$.

 $\check{s}a\chi$ glossed $ta\chi t$ i sang.

 $b\bar{u}d$. Aqb . . . MS. has $b\bar{a}d$ aqb. Ba'd would be more natural than this independent 'aqab.

tarak. I do not know whether the word is صرف or ترک or mor what it means. There is B_{χ} . tarak = crack, spilt, and here the meaning might possibly be a "cleft" in the rocks.

az zīr . . . čūčahå'š. There seems to be some confusion. Presumably it went back because it could not find its cubs. Otherwise omit aqab. "It went about on the lower side of the village (looking) for its young."

II

 Malahim ba kūh, ū dašt ū bīyābån γarībo nīst.
- Herjå birasīt, χaima zad o bārigā girift (o) hīc γarībo nīst

Dīlarām dilberī, Sangil tū kāfirī.

This was the only piece of verse which Shīr Muhammad could produce, and his knowledge of it seemed very uncertain. I suppose it to be a garbled form of some popular Persian love-song, and not native to Madaglasht nor even probably to Badakhshān.

The o's and \bar{u} 's recurring throughout are presumably metrical expedients. They were pronounced as if they were part of the preceding word.

- 1. 4. sangil presumably = Sang-dil.
- l. 14. $p\hat{a}.as$ presumably = $p\bar{a}s$ of $p\bar{a}s-b\bar{a}n$.
- Malahim probably for malā.im.
 γarīb here and in l. 20 perhaps means "out of place".
- Is Dīlarām or Sangdil the subject?
 Birasīt probably birasīd = mīrasīd 3rd sing.
 imperf.

TRANSLATION OF SPECIMENS

B. I

A man had two sons. The younger son said to his father: "O father, divide off my elder brother's share (of the inheritance), and divide off my share likewise"...

The younger brother said to the elder: "Your share has been made too big. You and I are of one father, and we (should) share alike."

The son of his uncle came and said: "You must give me my share, for your father is my uncle." (They said): "Come to-morrow morning and then we shall give you your share"...

"I came in the morning" (said the cousin) "but you gave me nothing. You have fooled me. Why do you fool me? Give me my rights."

B. II

A certain man had two sons. The younger said to his father: "O father, give me that which is due to me." Thereupon the father divided his property up between his sons. Some days later the younger son gathered his belongings together and journeyed off to a distant country. There he wasted his substance in riotous living. When he had dissipated the whole of it a severe famine fell on that country and he got into great straits. He went to one of the men of that country and entered into partnership with him, and the man sent him out into the desert to feed his swine, and he was glad to eat the same food that the swine ate, and no one gave him anything.

Then he thought within himself, and said to himself: "How many servants are there in my father's house who receive pay and have more than enough of bread, while I am dying of hunger. Now I will arise and go to my father and say: 'O father, I have sinned against God and against you and I am not worthy to be called your son, now support me in any fashion as one of your servants."

Then he arose and went to his father. Now when he was a long way off his father saw him, and pity came into his heart and he ran and caught him in his arms and kissed him.

There was a man (by name) Daula Muhammad, and he went to a mountain. He went to the mountain along with another man. Afterwards a bear attacked them. When it attacked them one of the two men escaped. The bear took up the man Daula Muhammad (on its back) and carried him off to another place. Then it proceeded to paw his eyelids and his arms and legs. "He is alive," it said. But Daula Muhammad pretended to be dead.

Then the bear went to a cliff (saying), "I will bring a slab of stone and put it on him (or put him on it)." Then while the bear was occupied with the stone the man made his escape.

(Another time) Daula Muhammad went to the mountain and saw a leopard's cubs. There were four cubs. Then he took fright and went back to his house. He came to his house and took a skin-bag (for carrying grain in), and at midday, having returned the same way (?), he caught the cubs and turned them into the bag. Then he tied up the mouth of the bag and turned back.

He had gone half way home when the leopard found out (that its cubs were missing) and came (after him). It came up to near the village. Daula Muhammad, however, had reached the village and (the leopard) went back from below the village (looking) for its cubs.

Daula Muhammad brought them and put them down on the roof in the presence of the Mehtarzhau of Drosh. They set the dogs at the cubs, but they refused to go forward because of the powerful odour. TEXTS 173

The Mehtarzhau gave Daula Muhammad a present and took the cubs away to Drosh.

M. II

There was a man, Dîlarâm by name, who fell in love and said:

The Bulbul went into the garden,

She looked at the trees.

He sighed and thought of the form of (his) Lēlī.

Dîlaram you are a lover, Stony-Heart you are an infidel.

You carry off my heart with you;

Be you my lover.

Give no medicine, Physician,

I suffer from the pain of love.

I will not get better, and you will be discredited.

Dīlarām you are a lover, Stony-Heart you are an infidel.

Evening prayer-time came,

My lover came not.

I kept one eye on the look out.

Sleep became unlawful to me.

Dīlarām you are a lover, Stony-Heart you are an infidel.

You carry away my heart with you.

Be you my lover.

Curses (?) on the mountains and the plains and deserts are no strange thing.

Wherever she came she pitched her tent and made her place of audience (or her camping-ground),

(And) it is no strange thing.

Dilaram you are a lover, Stony-heart you are an infidel.
